

Gardens & Landscapes of Portugal

no. 01 / 06.2013

Newsletter

Gardens & Landscapes of Portugal's launch was a very lively event!

Gardens & Landscapes of Portugal's launch was a deeply gratifying moment for all those involved in this Project. Following three presentations by Professor John Dixon Hunt, Jan Woudstra and Anatole Tchikine at the University of Évora, the journal was introduced by Professor Ana Duarte Rodrigues and the first online edition was presented by Professor Jan Woudstra. We were honoured with the presence of University of Évora vice-rector and many members of CHAIA's Scientific Committee, as well as some of the authors of articles in this first edition and all of the G&LP team. At the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities of NOVA, we were honoured once more with the presence of the faculty's sub-director and CHAM's board was represented by Professor Nuno Senos. In addition the first edition of the journal was presented by Professor Anatole Tchikine from Dumbarton Oaks/Harvard University. To be kept up to date with G&LP initiatives or to submit articles see: http://www.chaia_gardens_landscapesofportugal.uevora.pt/index%20home%20presentation.htm

Pós-Graduação em Jardins e Paisagem is a way to find a job!

The second year of post-graduate studies in Gardens & Landscapes at FCSH/NOVA is coming to an end and we have achieved our goal with the course "Projeto em Jardins e Paisagem" because most of the projects were delivered by the institutions where the internship was carried on, but this year two of our students were actually invited to become part of the team at Parques de Sintra – Monte da Lua and Estação Agronómica Nacional. In times like this a project on Gardens & Landscapes that then becomes the starting point to get a job, leaves us the sensation that the strategy was good and that it was a job well done. Congratulations to Patricia and João Pedro!

New Centro Interpretativo do Jardim Calouste Gulbenkian

The new Interpretative Centre of the Calouste Gulbenkian garden in Lisbon will be inaugurated on 20th July. This new project, by Aurora Carapinha, will associate a multimedia space with a leisure area promoted by the use of a glass wall which will allow the intercommunication between the interior (house) and the exterior (garden), created by the landscape architect Gonçalo Ribeiro Telles and the landscape architect João Mateus. Next 21st July this new area is open to the public and we invite you all to go there! This news is taken from: http://www.gulbenkian.pt/media/files/FTP_files/NL/Newsletterjunho2013/index.html#/8/zoomed